

C-View Windows

Glass Selector

Selecting a Glass Type

Selecting the appropriate glass type for your window or door is an important part of the ordering process. Each glass types have various pros and cons.

Below are some things that you should consider when selecting a glass type.

If you need help in this process talk to one of our experienced Sales Staff

THINGS TO CONSIDER

- SAFETY
- UV PROTECTION
- NOISE REDUCTION (ACOUSTICS)
- PRIVACY
- SOLAR AND THERMAL REDUCTION (LOW E)
- BUSH FIRE RATINGS

C-VIEW WINDOWS

For more information call C-View on
(07) 5520 1200

or visit www.c-view.com.au

Float Glass

- Most Economical Option
- When it breaks it will shatter into large, sharp pieces

Toughened Glass

- Grade A Safety Glass
- Greater heat resistant properties
- When it breaks it will shatter into small, granular pieces

Laminate Glass

- Grade A Safety Glass
- Helps protect carpets, curtains and furniture by blocking out 99 % of UV Light
- When it breaks it will remain intact in the opening
- Effective in reducing Noise (Acoustics)

Low E Glass

- Provides increased levels of Solar Control
- Provides increased levels of Thermal Control
- Available in Float, Toughened or Laminate Glass

Acoustic Glass

- Grade A Safety Glass
- Specifically designed to reduce noise levels
- Available Laminate Glass Only

Clear
(Float or Toughened)
(Laminate or Low E)

Grey
(Float or Toughened)
(Laminate or Low E)

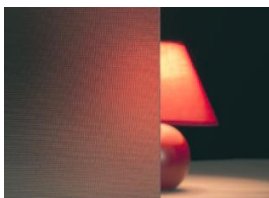

Dark Grey
(Float or Toughened)

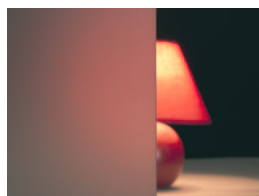

Green
(Float or Toughened)
(Laminate or Low E)

Obscure Glass

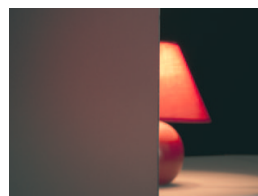

- Provides increased levels of privacy and glare reduction
- Available in Float, Toughened (SatinLite and Acid Etched) or Laminate Glass (White Translucent Only)

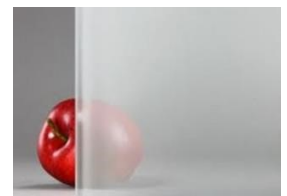

Satinlite
(Float or Toughened)

Acid Etched
(Float or Toughened)

Grey Acid Etched
(Float or Toughened)

White Translucent
(Laminate Only)

DISCLAIMER

This brochure, issued as a general guide only does not preclude the use of other methods, materials or equipment. Specific advice or a more explicit cleaning instruction should be obtained from a reputable glazier, a professional window cleaner or the glass manufacture. C-View Windows Pty Ltd disclaims liability from any loss or damage suffered from the provision or use of this information.

For more information call C-View on
(07) 5520 1200
or visit www.c-view.com.au